The clever Chappelle Sisters opened the bill with a singing and dancing turn that scored well, both ladies being pretty, handsome dressers and dancers and singers far above the ordinary. The farce comedy sketch, "Over the Pike," by Mabel Fuller, Molly Moller and Dan Burke, was another entertaining, laugh-producing number, and the applause was frequent and hearty while the trio was on the stage. After twenty minutes of the weird work of the Royal Hungarian Gypsy orchestra the Three Marvelous Merrills continued the show with an artistic and thrilling act on bicycles. The eldest of the three created considerable humor with a burlesque mes-senger boy characterization. The animated song sheet was started on its second week, and was well received. GOVERNOR TYLER ISSUES A PARDON TO RICHARD L. CLARKE.

General and Personal. Evening Star Bureau, No. 701 King St. (Bell Telephone No. 106),

Passing Counterfeit Coin-

ALEXANDRIA4 Va., June 25, 1901. The clerk of the corporation court this norning received a communication from Gov. J. Hoge Tyter announcing that he had pardoned Richard L. Clarke, who was serving a two years' sentence in the state prison on conviction by the corporation court of this city of passing counterfeit coin. The pardon recalls a case that attracted considerable notice here more than a year ago and received the closest attention from the officers of the United States secret service. Clarke was arrested in this city March 3, 1900, with a partner named James Barry, by Officer James Hall. Spurious silver dollars were found on the men At the hearing of the case before Mayor Simpson several witnesses testified that they had been swindled with bad money by the prisoners.

Notice of the arrest of the two men, who were supposed to be crooks of note, attracted to the station house Chief Wilkie and Mr. Moran of the secret service bureau in Washington. The chief and his assistant upon examining the coins supposed to be counterfeit pronounced them spurious, but said they were fairly good imitations. In weight, however, the dollars were below the standard, weighing scarcely more than a half dollar. They bore the date of 1879. The police were of the opinion that the two men had been working as counterfeiters with other parties at distant points who were engaged in a big scheme. One of the prisoners stated that he got $20 of the bad money from a man in Baltimore. But the efforts of the police and the secret service men failed to connect the prisoners with other counterfeiters and they were sent for trial to the corporation court, where both were sentenced to the penitentiary. Barry was pardoned by the governor some time County Court in Session.

The Zoo Receives Big Horn Sheep From Rocky Mountains. The Zoological Park has just received a fine specimen of an animal rarely seen in captivity, the mountain sheep or bighorn, that inhabits the highest ranges and most inaccessible peaks of the Rocky mountains, It is said to be almost impossible to capture adults of this species, owing to their fleetness and ability to climb the most precipitous cliffs. The park has been endeavoring for some years past to obtain a specimen, but without success until this one was offered. It is a young ram, somewhat over a year old, thoroughly tame and gentle, in great contrast to its shy and wild ancestors. With a fine pair of moose, two kinds of caribou, the prong horn antelope, the mule deer and the Rocky mountain sheep, the park has now an unusually fine exhibit of characteristic American
